

Voice over IP (VoIP) Endpoints

- Most phone systems run over IP networks via dedicated protocols, such as the Session Initiation Protocol (SIP), both in-home and office environments.
- VoIP endpoint devices are hardware devices (phones) or software, such as Cisco Jabber, that allow you to make phone calls.

